

Safer Internet Day

11 February

What are our responsibilities to others online?

How can we create an internet where everyone is fairly treated?

How do you speak up if you see something online that doesn't seem right?

How do you know what you see online is true?

Who owns the things I share online?

To spark your thinking about online safety, and to get free, confidential help go to netsafe.org.nz

Safer Internet Day 2020!

11 February

Talk to your tamariki

The most important thing a parent can do to help their child facing an online challenge is to get ahead of it. Start a conversation about their life online – this helps reduce the damage if things do go wrong.

Protect your patch

Criminals want your information and money – and you really don't want them to have it. Make sure you've got passcodes on pins and devices. Use strong passwords. Use a password manager to help you vary them for every account.

See something, say something

Communities are safest when we look out for each other. If you see something suspicious or upsetting online, you can report it (even anonymously) to Netsafe.
